

Organizational Knowledge Facilitation through Communities of Practice in Emerging Markets

Part of the Advances in Knowledge Acquisition, Transfer, and Management (AKATM) Book Series

Sheryl Buckley (University of South Africa, South Africa), Grzegorz Majewski (University of the West of Scotland, Scotland) and Apostolos Giannakopoulos (University of South Africa, South Africa)

Description:

Communities of Practice are accessible to both experts and new members of a particular community with diverse academic and cultural backgrounds as well as varying social expectations and experiences. Despite the tremendous opportunities for collective learning and knowledge sharing that Communities of Practice offer, not enough is known about these communities in emerging economies and their potential to facilitate cooperation between experts from around the world.

Organizational Knowledge Facilitation through Communities of Practice in Emerging Markets seeks to fill the knowledge gap surrounding Communities of Practice and their role within developing nations. Focuses on critical topics related to different types of knowledge communities and the ways in which such communities generate innovation.

Readers:

This research-based publication is an ideal reference source for academics, business professionals, researchers, entrepreneurs, and those currently studying at the graduate level.
