

International Journal of Ethics in Digital Research and Scholarship (IJEDRS)

ISSN: 2476-0005; EISSN: 2476-0013

Established 2017; Published Semi-Annually

Editor(s)-in-Chief: Jeffrey Hsu (Fairleigh Dickinson University, USA)

The International Journal of Ethics in Digital Research and Scholarship (IJEDRS) provides state-of-the-art research on the impact, application, theoretical issues and implications related to the ethics of using digital technologies in various fields. These fields include but are not limited to education, industry, government, and health care. Of particular interest are topics related to computer psychology, online behavior, and issues of privacy, security, surveillance, and confidentiality. As a semi-annual journal, IJEDRS publishes empirical research, theoretical studies, case studies, and book reviews that focus on ethics and the integrity of computer use in education, industry, medicine, government, and in the global business community.
