

Impacts of Globalization on Youth in the Developing World: Emerging Research and Opportunities

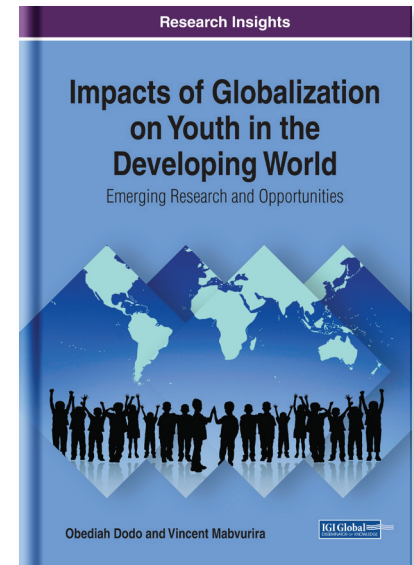

Part of the Advances in Religious and Cultural Studies Book Series

Obediah Dodo (Bindura University, Zimbabwe) and Vincent Mabvurira (University of Zimbabwe, Zimbabwe)

Description:

Evidence has shown that the majority of the challenges facing modern youth populations worldwide originate from globalization. It is essential to look at the nexus between youth in developing countries and the adoption of globalization aspects and the impact that this has on education levels.

Impacts of Globalization on Youth in the Developing World: Emerging Research and Opportunities is a scholarly academic book that seeks to explore the relationship between youth in the developing world and globalization by assessing the impact of the imposition and adoption of world systems on youth and to map how education could be designed to appropriately contain the potential shocks and negative effects on recipients. Highlighting a wide range of topics such as education, literacy, and urbanization, this book is ideal for sociologists, teachers, non-governmental organizations, academicians, policymakers, social workers, researchers, educators, and students.
