Part of the Advances in Logistics, Operations, and Management Science Book Series

Ziska Fields (University of Johannesburg, South Africa), Julien Bucher (Chemnitz University of Technology, Germany) and Anja Weller (Chemnitz University of Technology, Germany)

Description:

The fourth industrial revolution continues to have a profound effect on humans, business activities, and the planet. Understanding its impacts and creating a society where mankind can thrive instead of fear technological advancement will be key as humans' abilities to deal with complex challenges will be tested more and more.

Imagination, Creativity, and Responsible Management in the Fourth Industrial Revolution is an essential reference source that discusses preventative measures to limit the potential negative impacts and threats posed by technological advancements, which could include humans' loss of creativity, problem-solving skills, and critical thinking as automation becomes more prevalent. Putting ingenuity to good use by formulating responsible and sustainable management could hold the key to developing more opportunities for humans to thrive. Featuring research on topics such as digital enterprise, sustainable development, and knowledge sharing, this book is ideally designed for academics, researchers, students, consultants, IT specialists, engineers, and professionals analyzing the impact of innovative technological developments.
